

David Goldman is the founder and Chairman of the Fellowships at Auschwitz for the Study of Professional Ethics (FASPE). FASPE promotes ethical leadership within the professions. Towards such end, FASPE provides graduate students in professional schools and early career professionals with fellowships to study professional ethics, responsibility and leadership against the backdrop of the actions and choices of their professional counterparts in Nazi Germany. These Fellowships now focus on Business, Design & Technology, Journalism, Law, Medicine, and Seminary.

David, now retired, was a partner in the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP. He served as the head of the firm's International Corporate Advisory Practice Group until 2016 and as head of the firm's New York office until 2017. David was recognized by The Legal 500 as a leader in his field and was selected by The American Lawyer as a Dealmaker of the Year in 2011.

David has served on the board of a number of for-profit and non-profit organizations. He was chairman of the Auschwitz Jewish Center and serves on the Board of the American Friends of the Polin Museum. He was formerly on the Board of Directors of the Yale Law School Fund.

David is a graduate of Washington University (BA) and Yale Law School (JD). He lives in Princeton, New Jersey
